ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Group email and individual user email are provided. The group email is accessible by each member of a predefined group. The individual-user email is accessible by an individual. Additionally, an email application, which is executable by the individual user, is provided. The email application is configured to display the group email and the individual user email in response to being executed by the individual user.